Rate Fixed for Air Mail; May Relet Contracts

One-Fifth Cent a Pound-Mile Would Eliminate Bidding

Subsidy Approved by House Postoffice Committee Half Old Rate

REVERSAL IS NEAR

Resotation of Mail to Private Air Lines is Likely Soon

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The house postoffice committee Friday voted to establish a fixed price per pound for air-mail, eliminating competitive bidding. Under competitive bidding, rates averaged 42 mills (nearly 1/2 cent) per pound per mile. The rate will probably be fixed at 2 mills (one-fifth-cent) per pound per mile.

May Relet Contracts

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The house postoffice committee Thursday indicated that the carriers who flew the air mail up until Monday may be given an opportunity to carry it once more.

Chairman Mead said so at the hearing on proposed permanent air mail legislation to supplant present law. "This committee," Mead said, "is willing to give consideration to an amendment that would let these carriers come back and bid on new contracts."

Thomas B. Doe, official of the Eastern Air Transport, which had a contract until the government took it away, was testifying at the time.

The senate air mail committee, which made disclosures that were the basis for the air mail contract cancellations, meantime was listening to Walter F. Brown, former postmaster general, conclude his four days on the stand.

Chairman Black finished his long examination of Brown during the morning and turned him over to Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, who asked Brown a succession of friendly questions.

Denies Irregularities This gave Brown an opportunity to deny any wrongdoing in connection with air mail contracts and to assert stoutly that every contract or extension he made conformed with the law.

Austin read portions of Postmaster General Farley's order cancelling the domestic mail contracts and asking Brown whether the charge of conspiracy it made was true.

"Absolutely not," Brown replied. Mead told reporters after the house committee hearing that he left the administration willing to let some of the concerns that had held mail contracts bid on those to be awarded.

Prepare Amendments Mead and Representative Kelly, Republican, Pennsylvania, an expert on air mail matters, then began preparing amendments to the measure already introduced.

"We plan," Mead said, "to eliminate control of companies which will get mail contracts through holding companies and interlocking directorates. I think that will do away with some of the evils that have been a reflection on the air mail in the past. I am told there is sentiment in some quarters to pay for mail carrying on a cost plus basis, but the committee sentiment is strongly against that."

Before Black turned Brown over to the Vermont senator, he viewed once more circumstances surrounding the former postmaster general's participation with the late Joseph Bagley in joint stock accounts back in 1928 and 1929.

Brown complained about this review and charged the committee was trying to "close the issues by dragging in a lot of extraneous matter relating to my old friend Bagley."

Links Bagley

Unperturbed, Senator Black reminded that Bagley was a representative for the E. L. Bruce & Co., a Memphis lumber concern whose patented flooring blocks were the only ones that would fit specifications for post-office floor on several large contracts let during Brown's administration.

Lum Vines Improves at Hospital Friday

Lum Vines, horse-back accident victim, was reported improved Friday at Josephine hospital. Physicians described his condition as "semi-conscious and critical." Mr. Vines attempted to talk Friday for the first time since Wednesday afternoon when he fell from his horse, fracturing his skull.

Radio reception in thousands of tests, has been found to be at its best when the moon is below the horizon.

Spurns Crown

His right to succession to a throne means less to Prince Sigvard of Sweden, above, than his love for a German film star. Resisting royal pressure, swiftness royal status, he will wed Miss Erika Patzek in London. Sigvard, second son of the Swedish crown prince, has been a movie director in Berlin for several years.

5 Army Fliers Are Killed in 6 Days

But Only One Actually Flying Mail—Weather Is Blamed

FREMONT, Ohio.—(AP)—Army Air-mail Pilot Norman Burnett bailed out of his ship seven miles north of here early Friday and suffered a broken leg in a parachute descent. Burnett was out of Cleveland, bound for Chicago, but did not have a load of mail with him.

5 Dead in 6 Days

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(AP)—Custodian of the mails in the skies for less than 72 hours, the army Air Service up to Thursday had lost two pilots by death, another by serious injury, and had witnessed the crash of a fourth. The casualties brought to five the number of army airmen who have died in the last six days. A sixth flier was on an operating table at Cleveland, Md., with severe head injuries. Only one of the fliers killed had mail in transit at the time of his death.

By flying weather—belts of fog and snow—apparently caused one of the two accidents, the near Disaster, O., in which Lieutenant Durward O. Lowry rocketed to his death in a wood.

Failure of his radio to function properly contributed to the death of Lieutenant Lowry, Capt. Fred Nelson, in charge of the army mail forces at Toledo, said. He is investigating the accident.

The officer declared, however, that "any commercial pilot would have been killed had he been up against the same combination of circumstances which faced Lowry."

Near Denison, Texas, Lieut. Fred L. Patrick lost his life when his plane plunged to earth. He was not carrying mail.

Erosion has changed the surface of the earth more than the combined effects of earthquakes, volcanoes, tornadoes, landslides and glaciers.

If Washington Doesn't Act, Futrell Will Be Appealed to

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—What appeared to be a legal tangle that only legislative action could solve, was found Friday by the State Industrial and Relief Board in a discussion of the problems confronting the State Construction Commission in its applications for loans and grants from the Public Works Administration (PWA). The Construction Commission was advised to carry its present difficulties to the PWA in Washington, and, if nothing satisfactory could be worked out, to confer with Governor Futrell over a special session to enact the necessary legislation.

Patten Tells of His Rate Worries

Humorous Rotary Speech Sounds Like a Mail-Order Catalogue

Local Agent A. B. Patten, of the Louisiana & Arkansas Railway, answered numerous criticisms of the railroad's delay in finding correct rates for shippers, with a blast of statistics that turned the Rotary club upside down with laughter at its noon luncheon Friday in Hotel Barlow. "My accuser," said Mr. Patten, referring to L. Carter Johnson, who spoke the preceding Friday in a series of attacks and rebuttals against the various trades and professions in Rotary, "charges that when a shipper 'kicks' about the rate, the railroad man goes through 50 books, leaf by leaf, works all day and all night—and then looks up at the shipper and says: 'That's the right rate—only I can't prove it.'"

"And I'll tell you why the railroad man has trouble proving it. Here's a sample of the tariff structure, taken from the schedule on heap or jute cotton bale covering—and observe the number of index figures you have to look up in other books."

"Note 1—Rates apply on new hemp jute bagging not exceeding 16 strands to the square inch, counting warp and filling; and used hemp or jute bagging not exceeding 28 strands, double strands to be counted as one. Note 3—Stopover privileges for partial unloading do not apply in connection with the Class 20 rating. Note 4—Class 27 1/2 rating does not apply where lower charges result from the application of Class 20 rating. Note 5—Rating does not apply to or from stations on the C. & A. in Kansas. Note 6—Class 20 rating does not apply from stations in Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana (west of the Mississippi river), Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma or Texas to points covered by Southwestern Lines' Tariff 154-C, except to points in Gateways Territory as described in Item 35, subject to provisions of Exception R of item 15. (14) Expires with September 30, 1933, unless sooner cancelled, changed or extended."

Guests of the club Friday were: Harrison Sheppard, Hot Springs; Bob Maxwell, Texarkana; and Monte Kitchens, Little Rock.

Factor Calm

Factor did not display the gleam which might have been expected of him.

"This result is what a kidnapping victim may expect when he co-operates fully with the authorities," he said. "If every person kidnapped joined in bringing the criminals to justice, there would be no kidnapping menace."

Christianity to Be Admitted Only When It Passes Nazi Test

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Christianity will be respected in Germany but must submit to the test of the Nazi racial theories, Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, philosophic dictator of the Third Reich, said Friday.

Placing the Nazi movement above the church, Rosenberg in a world-wide broadcast said:

"If the National Socialist (Nazi) dons the brown shirt he ceases to be a Catholic, Protestant or member of any other church, because he is exclusively a fighting member of the German nation."

Tuohy Gang Gets Life in Kidnaping

Tuohy, Kator and Schaefer Sentenced 99 Years Each

CHICAGO.—Roger Tuohy, Al Kator and Gus Schaefer, member of the notorious Tuohy mob, which has ruled Northwest Chicago for many years, were found guilty by a jury in the criminal court Friday morning of kidnaping John Factor, wealthy speculator.

The jury fixed the punishment of each at 99 years in the penitentiary. They will have to serve 33 years before becoming eligible for parole.

The verdict was returned at 12:30 a. m. Tuohy and his two henchmen were led into court handcuffed and under heavy guard. The courtroom was filled with policemen. All exits were guarded. A large crowd was in the courtroom, among them Factor.

When the jury announced that it had arrived at a verdict, elaborate preparations were made. Silence was intense as Judge Michael Feinberg, presiding, mounted the bench. The jury then filed in. As they shuffled to their swivel chairs, the prisoners were led in. They stood in a corner as the verdicts were opened.

Tuohy, noted as the merciless leader of the Tuohy gang, became ill when the verdict of the jury was read. Grogginess and coughing, his handkerchief held to his face, the gangster who once defied the Capone syndicate, was assisted from the courtroom.

Solemnly the 12 jurors watched him and his co-defendants make their exit. Schaefer was white-faced and Kator, known as a cold-blooded gunman and killer, managed a last scornful grimace as he followed his companions.

Prosecutor Elated First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley, who prosecuted, aided by Assistant Marshall Kearney, expressed elation.

"This spells the end of gang kidnaping in Cook county," he said. "It is a warning to others who are kidnapping-minded."

The verdict spelled "finis" to the terrible Tuohys of the Northwest side. Of the once mighty gang which controlled all the territory in the north end of Cook county, only two members remain out of the clutches of the law. They are Charles (Lee Wagon) Connors and Ludwig Schmidt, both fugitives from justice.

Factor Calm Factor did not display the gleam which might have been expected of him.

"This result is what a kidnapping victim may expect when he co-operates fully with the authorities," he said. "If every person kidnapped joined in bringing the criminals to justice, there would be no kidnapping menace."

Senate Turns Down Proposal to Restore Vets' Benefits

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Statistics showing that a group of 20 large corporations poured more than 20 billion dollars into the speculative boom market in 1929 were made public Friday by the senate stock market investigation committee.

The committee gave out the results of a survey showing that a selected group of corporations had almost a billion dollars in the market at one time near the peak of the boom, in the autumn of that frenzied speculative year.

Cities Service Was One

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Evidence that the Cities Service company poured $285 millions into Wall Street speculative channels during the boom year of 1929 was presented to senate investigators Friday.

Ernest H. Johnston, vice-president of the utility holding company, said Cities Service made 912 "street" loans in 1929 aggregating $285 million dollars.

Vet Benefits Defeated

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—An effort to restore to World War veterans all benefits taken from them by the economy law was voted down late Thursday in the senate.

It rejected, 60 to 14, an amendment by Senator Hatfield, Republican, West Virginia, which would have repealed all sections of the economy law that affected veterans. It was estimated that the amendment would have cost $220,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Hatfield offered the proposal as a rider to an administration compromise that Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, had proposed to attach to the independent offices appropriations bill. The Byrnes amendment would restore to the rolls thousands of veterans whose disabilities were presumed to have been of service origin before the economy act and who were taken off compensation by review boards since that act passed last March.

After rejection of the Hatfield amendment, the senate recessed until Monday under a debate-limiting agreement to speed passage of the bill.

The Byrnes amendment would grant veterans restored to the rolls 75 per cent of the compensation they had been getting until their cases are passed upon by the Washington Veterans' Board of Appeals.

It also would enact into law the recent presidential regulation providing free hospitalization for needy veterans. But it was so arranged that a player's chances would be slightly better than on some.

It has been estimated this year that there are about 25,000 slot machines in New York City alone, many of them located where school children can operate them. The same estimate places the total revenue of the machines at more than $1,000,000 a week.

Numerous legal battles in that state finally have resulted in a high court decision that the machines are within the law as long as they vend candy and gum, and as long as they occasionally return slugs which are stamped as being "Of No Value."

Also, there are very few of the devices which even pretend to give the customer a small package of cheap candy for his money. #### Slot-Machine Gives One Chance in 1,000

Expert Takes It Apart to Show the Suckers What Makes the Wheels Click

Reprinted from Star May 15, 1933

Are you one of the millions of Americans who like to watch the wheels go around in slot machines?

Do you sometimes drop your nickels, or even quarters, into these mechanistic marvels of small-time suckerdom and wait expectantly for a gratifying shower of little brass slugs to reward your venture?

Do you really think that you can beat those madly whirling, gaily colored wheels?

If you do, a New York University professor has given you something to think about.

His name is Dr. E. E. Free, but he has proved that there is nothing gratis about slot machines. For the enlightenment, or perhaps the disillusionment, of his science classes, he has taken apart one of the ubiquitous jitney juggernauts to see what makes it click.

This was a nickle slot machine with a better-than-average reputation for generosity. It was essentially like the hundreds of thousands that are scattered throughout cigar, candy and drug stores in scores of American cities. But it was so arranged that a player's chances would be slightly better than on some.

It has been estimated this year that there are about 25,000 slot machines in New York City alone, many of them located where school children can operate them. The same estimate places the total revenue of the machines at more than $1,000,000 a week.

Third Exodus for Gambling Devices in Hope Since 1930

Payoff Marble Machines Also Expelled by Local Police

TOKENS FLOOD CITY

Discs Bought Wholesale Cause Stores and Operators Heavy Loss

The slot and marble machine racket—twice expelled by city authorities within the last four years—again was making its exit Friday under orders of Chief of Police Clarence Baker.

The machines were being removed from cigar, grocery, candy and drug stores, filling stations and restaurants, throughout the business district.

The machines, which paid off in little brass tokens and some in actual cash, violate city and state laws. The brass tokens, in some establishments, were being exchanged by proprietors for cash.

All marble and slot machines must vanish if they come back they will be subject to seizure. Those were the orders of Chief Baker.

First Expelled in 1930

Gambling machines were expelled from Hope December 31, 1930, when The Star threatened to file information against them, and succeeded in having them withdrawn without court action.

The machines came back in the spring of 1933 on a wave of small-time gambling. The Star struck again in an editorial May 3, 1933. Twelve days later the machines were withdrawn.

The machines, with their intricate parts arranged so the percentage is all against you, came back for the third time about three weeks ago. By actual count the devices numbered over 30. One store had as many as eight. In several places two or more machines could be found.

Sign of Double-Cross

Some idea of the double-crossing a business man lays himself open to when he monkeys with gambling devices appears in a story reaching The Star office.

The metal tokens used in the slot-machine "payoff" may be purchased out-of-town for a fraction of a cent. The story goes, that soon after the entry of the machines in Hope somebody purchased thousands of these tokens and placed them in circulation in the stores which trade in machine-tokens—resulting in a loss for the proprietors.

The out-of-town owners of the machines did not fare so well, either, from what The Star hears. It is said that when the collecting agent came to settle up for one machine he found $90 in the till, but the merchant had $80 in claims for merchandise issued against tokens.

J. E. Barham, field inspector for the Crop Production Loan association, embracing Hempstead and Nevada counties, left for Memphis Friday to attend a meeting of field inspectors from five southern states.

Purpose of the gathering is to receive instructions on the letting of 1934 crop loans. Interested farmers may get in touch with Mr. Barham next week concerning these loans. His office is located in the Mid-South building, next door to The Star.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Roosevelt Hard to Reach, Senators Squawk... Garner Fervid by "Coffin Handles"... Widow Berger Fights On... Capper Has Double
Steve Outlasts Blizard.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Even senators are finding it isn't as easy to see the president as it used to be.

Subdued squawks are heard on Capitol Hill. Some Democrats complain that progressive Republican senators have much better luck getting to Roosevelt than they do.

In previous years a senator could make a date at the executive office almost any time he liked. But the demand seldom has been so great.

Few care to admit they haven't ready access to the White House. (It does no good to let constituents know that.) But Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina was an exception.

Smith blurted to the Senate that he had been trying to get an audience with Roosevelt for a week, to discuss his own crop-production and harvesting loan bill—a crying need for more than 50 per cent of those who produce the crops in this country.

After his public complaint, Smith
was given an appointment right away.
"Cotton Ed" handles his job.

Vice President Jack Garner, arriving for a cabinet meeting, turned to the police officer at the door and demanded:

"Why the hell don't you change the silver knobs a mink door? They remind me of the handles on a coffin."

Berger's Widow Fights On
Mrs. Victor Berger of Milwaukee, whose late husband was for years the lone Socialist congressman, again is trying to get action on her bill for payment of Berger's salary during the years he was barred from the House after being duly elected. Back in 1919-21, Berger was expelled from his seat by House resolution because Judge K. M. Landis had sentenced him to 20 years for his anti-war activities.

He kept getting re-elected in regular and special elections; the House kept vacating his seat. In 1921 the Supreme Court reversed his conviction.
Later, Congress let Berger in.

Mrs. Berger, a handsome, white-haired, pink-cheeked woman allied with the peace movement, says her bill is part of the fight for political minorities.

Copper Has "Double"
Marvin H. McIntyre, presidential secretary, is used to being mistaken for Senator Capper of Kansas. Their features differ, but in contour and gray hair they're much the same.
McIntyre always wears a derby; Capper doesn't.

Steve Outlasts Blizard
Steve Vasilikos, White House people and popcorn man, just had been saved by the Roosevelt from eviction from his corner when the recent big blizzard tried to drive him off. Almost up to his knees in snow, Steve stuck on, warming his hands on the corn-popper. . . . The last unsmiled sliding place for Washington kids seemed to be the Capitol grounds slope. But the cops quickly drove them off.

Plugs for NRA
Miss Frances M. Robinson, secretary-assistant to General Johnson at the much-discussed salary of nearly $8000, is doing some of the NRA speaking. In her last speech, "Robbie" denied NRA had raised living costs.

Mrs. Henry T. Rainey smokes men-tholated cigarettes. She spreads menthol crystals on the bottom of a small box, puts in cigarettes, and lets them
soak up the flavor.

Mme. Troyanovsky, the Russian ambassador's wife, is interested in anti-Soviet organizations here. She says she's never met a D. A. R., but would like to.

Gene Buck, Broadway composer-producer, entered a Woman's National Press Club luncheon as Secretary Wallace was speaking.

"It was lousy of me to interrupt the secretary," he announced, as he began his own speech.

GLORIFYING
YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

To the average girl, lipstick means more than just another cosmetic. You feel fresher and more vivacious the minute you get it on.

Just don't overdo it. A little lipstick goes a long way and you should bear in mind that you use it not to change your appearance, but to enhance the beauty you already have.

Every cubic inch of air contains thousands of minute particles.
Butterflies taste with their legs.
Their taste is 1600 times as sensitive as that of the human tongue in detecting the sweetness of sugar.

Robert Louis Stevenson wished his birthday, November 13, to a little girl
because her own fell on Christmas.

Match your lipstick to the color of your blood. Finish your lips. moisten them and then inspect them in the mirror on the cosmetic counter before buying. The lipstick should then be matched to the color of your lips.
Apply from the center of your upper lip outward. Start in the middle and extend the line on each side to the corners. Then rough the lower lip, being careful to color the inside,
which shows when you talk, as well as the outside. And don't get it on your teeth.

If you think that your mouth is too large, make the line near the corners
very thin. Thin lips should be rouged generously to give the effect of enlargement.

The coat of lipstick should be smooth and even. The best way is to follow the contour of your lips with the lipstick and then smooth down the rough edges with your little finger.

Next: A new lipstick.

Next: A new lipstick.

Next: A new lipstick.

Next: A new lipstick.

The Twelve Sent Forth

Text: Matt. 23:5-11:1
The International Uniform Sunday
School Lesson for February 23.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

From those who heard the word of Jesus as he went about teaching and preaching in the cities and villages
and who responded to his teaching, Jesus drew 12 into an inner circle of discipleship. Later he appointed others and sent them forth, two by two, proclaiming the message of repentance and the kingdom of God.

But throughout his brief ministry,
until his death and resurrection, it was the experiences of these 12 that we are concerned chiefly. We have no detailed picture of the means by which Jesus taught and trained them, but we have repeated indications that the human material was not molded altogether easily, and that even the greatest of teachers was not able always to make the truth clear and effective in the mind and heart of his pupils.

Concerning some of the 12 apostles
we have very little knowledge, but others, particularly Peter, John, James, Thomas, and Judas, stand forth in the New Testament narrative in a distinctive way. They must have been men of unusual character to have been drawn to Jesus as they were.

Men who were self-satisfied and conventionally minded would have been repelled rather than won by a teacher who uttered such new and strange truth. But the times were ripe with the hope of an earthly kingdom, and there is much in the New Testament record to indicate that these men followed Jesus because they believed they were going to share in a great kingdom that he would establish on earth.

Even after they had witnessed the example of Jesus and listened to his teachings of unselfishness and love,
they still were capable of quarreling about positions of preeminence and who should be the greatest in the kingdom.

They were not moved with compassion for the multitude as their master was moved.

It is instructive that Jesus sent them forth to the work of preaching and ministering in his name even before they were instructed fully or in any sense perfect. The good work of the world has not all been done by perfect men.

The ministers of grace often are imperfect in some respect, and it is no judgment upon those who minister in the name of Christ that faults are found in them, though there is nothing in the Gospel that they preach to palliate or condone these faults.

Even the best of men learn slowly to discover and conquer their unworthy acts and tempers.

The great thing about these 12 disciples is that their hearts were centered on right and that they had the courage and bearing of their convictions. Jesus chose them in spite of their faults because they had in them the very root of matter.

The Gospel that they had to preach to the people was the same gospel that they could preach to their own hearts—a gospel of repentance and preparation for the kingdom of God, though they did not realize at the time, as they were later to learn, that this kingdom was spiritual rather than material and temporal.

How patiently and effectually Jesus dealt with these disciples; how well
he understood them and saved them from their own deepest faults, turning their very weaknesses and temperations to triumph for the faults of those who were intense in their convictions and allegations.

Men needed courage for the work to which they were going, and Jesus inspired them with his own faith and fearlessness.

Men never went forth to a greater task, nor have men ever achieved as much from small beginnings as has come from the work of the 12 whom Jesus sent forth.

That Yard Garden of Yours-No. 11

Insects Must Be Eradicated, for Good of Flowers,
But Job Needn't Be Taken Too Seriously

This is the eleventh of a series of articles by Donald Gray, famous landscape consultant, on how to make a beautiful garden of your back yard.

By DONALD GRAY
NEA Service Landscape Consultant

Gardening would be a lot more fun
if we didn't have to worry about bugs and diseases destroying our pet plants, but it might get monotonous and certainly the whole subject must ter would lack the sport of getting results, in spite of pests.

Do not worry about the things that may happen to your flowers and shrubs. Take it for granted that, if you want healthy plants you must have good soil, you must cultivate, give occasional water, and you must keep the bugs under control.

There is no magic wand to wave
in the way of any one chemical that will eradicate instantly all your troubles. You must learn to know the insect or disease that you are dealing with and then proceed to apply the right kind of remedy.

We Americans get more excited about our pests than the Old World gardeners. The minute we see a worm or bug we run for a spray gun and try to figure out just what chemical to use.

The European gardener does more mechanical work in eradicating his pests. If he sees a nest of caterpillars on a tree he picks them off by hand and destroys them by tramping on them.

Hand picking worms and beetles is not a pleasant job, but it really is much better than trying to kill them

Hundreds of spray materials are on the market for every known pest.
Buy a reliable one and follow directions. Be prepared to spray for scale and eggs when the plant is dormant;
they spray again when the leaves
come out and all through the growing season.

There is no let-down, but do not take it too seriously. It is one of the things that go with prize-winning flowers.

There are two general types of insects, those that suck and those that chew.

It is useless to put poison on the sucking type, the aphids or plant lice.
They stick their bills into the stem
or leaves of plants and breathe
through the sides of their bodies.
You must use something that covers these breathing pores. A poison will not do it, but an oil solution will.
Soapy water taken from the weekly
wash tub is an effective remedy.

Arsenate of lead sprayed on a leaf where chewing insects appear will put the poison into their stomachs
and kill the pests.

Celebrating the birthday anniversary of George Washington, the decorations were featured by the National colors, cherry trees and hatches. The guests came in costume and the prize for the best costume worn by girls went to Miss Mary Eason and to Glen Parker for the boys. Games and contests were enjoyed. The central feature of the refreshments was a beautiful birthday cake decorated with cherries and flags which was cut and served with an ice course.

The following clipping taken from the Paragould Daily Press will be of interest to the many friends of the former Miss Clarice McDaniel: The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Johnson, at 308 Garland street, was the scene of a very enjoyable social affair Thursday evening when Mrs. Johnson entertained in honor of her son and his bride, the Rev. and Mrs. Richard L. Johnson. The guests were greeted at the door by Mr. Charles Adams who directed them to Miss Nell Smith, who assisted the guests in caring for their wraps and then conducted them to the receiving line, which included the hostess, Mrs. Johnson, Miss Pauline Highsmith, who introduced the bride and groom, Mrs. H. T. Johnson of Arkadelphia, sister of the groom, and Mr. R. N. Johnson. The bride, an attractive blonde, wore a simple gown of Asches of Roses silk crepe with a corsage of pink carnations. The guests were invited into the dining room, where a table covered in white linen with a large embroidered centerpiece, decorated with a beautiful cut glass vase filled with pink carnations further enhanced the attractiveness of the room. After the bride cut the cake, the guests were served individual cakes and hot chocolate. Assisting in the serving were Mrs. Minnie Noble, who served the hot chocolate, and Mrs. Harry Spillman who served the wedding cake. Miniature pink wedding bells tied with white ribbon and bearing the names and date of marriage were used for favors. Piano music was rendered by Miss Pauline Highsmith and Mrs. H. T. Johnson. Mrs. John Meiser assisted the hostess in contributing to the entertainment of the guests, numbering about 40.

Scanning New Books

By BRUCE CATTON

A smooth and ingratiating romance that unintentionally skids into a telephone pole in the final chapters—that's Coningsby Dawson's new novel, "The Moon Through Glass." It tells about a London girl, daughter of a clergyman, who develops a weakness for being kissed. That, of course, is a common human frailty; what complicates matters is the fact that her parents go on holiday in Belgium just as the war breaks out, get tangled up with the German invasion, and vanish from the face of the earth.

This leaves sweet sixteen alone in London—a London full of romantic notions and romantic-looking young officers—and she has no mother to guide her. And that frailty of hers grows by what it feeds on. So, as you can imagine, things begin to happen to her.

She winds up by marrying Sir Peter Sterry, a young nobleman who is serving with the Canadians. He goes to France and she discovers that he previously had married a Canadian nurse.

Then he is reported killed in action, and the nurse stands right where an airplane bomb lands, so sweet sixteen's path is cleared.

She becomes a musical comedy star, by some process never quite made clear, survives the war, and marries an idealistic young novelist. And then who pops up but Sir Peter!

At this point the story performs the above-mentioned skid, and everybody involved acts with such a complete lack of common sense that it all gets rather trying.

Outside of that, however, it's a rather pleasant little story.

Published by Knopf, it sells for $2.50.

Melchior Will Sing "Tannhäuser"

Metropolitan Presents Wagner's Masterpiece With Notable Cast in Saturday's Matinee

Told By LAURITZ MELCHIOR

THE title-role of Wagner's opera "Tannhäuser" which I am singing this Saturday afternoon in the broadcast by the Metropolitan Opera Association, while musically one of the greatest in operatic literature, dramatically is very difficult and not altogether grateful. An artist, particularly a tenor, naturally wants to get a sympathetic response from his audience. It is something he can sense immediately and it is difficult to do one's best without it.

But in "Tannhäuser" the hero of the opera must wait until the last act before he feels this, when as a broken and despairing man he returns from Rome, doomed by the Pope, as he thinks, to eternal perdition, and in desperation determined to return to Venus who had got him into all this trouble. Then he wins the sympathy of the audience. In the first two acts he is a neurotic, perhaps a madman, fluctuating constantly between sensual delights and spiritual aspirations. The artist who interprets him must portray a man in the hands of forces greater than himself which now cast him down, now uplift him. He is a battlefield between desires of the flesh and aspirations of the soul. On one side is Venus, the goddess of love, on the other Elizabeth, the pure woman who ultimately is to redeem him.

Plot Taken From Old Legends "Tannhäuser" is a great masterpiece, a notable tragedy built upon lines almost Greek in their simplicity and symmetry. As in most of his operas Wagner went for his plot to old legends and folktales.

The minstrel Tannhäuser has become the beloved of Dame Venus in her grotto in the Venusberg, where he dwelt with her, the recipient of all the sensual delights the goddess of love can offer. At last, sufficed with all these, conscious of his deadly sin, he breaks away to seek forgiveness from the one, who, he thinks, alone can save him, the Holy Virgin.

Suddenly translated into the upper world, he finds himself in a meadow over which the great lie, the Wartburg, casts its shadow. There live the Landgrave of Thuringia, his niece, the saintly Elizabeth; there he had lived and had won the love of Elizabeth before Venus had caught him in her net.

A shepherd boy is piping to his flock. A band of pilgrims passes on its way to Rome. He would join them, when there comes a hunting party, the Landgrave, his friend Wolfram and other minstrels, who welcome him back and would have him accompany them to the Wartburg where is to be held a contest of song.

How Tannhäuser Wins Redemption Refusing at first, he is persuaded to go when Wolfram tells him that Elizabeth still longs for his return.

In the second act occurs the Song Contest in which Wolfram sings of love—spiritual love. This is too much for Tannhäuser. He hears the call of Venus. His madness returns and seizing his harp he bursts into a wild song of sensual love, the love which only one who has been with Venus can understand.

The assembly breaks up in confusion. The ladies retreat in horror. The nobles would kill him on the spot. Elizabeth pleads for him and wins his life on his promise to accompany the pilgrims to Rome and there seek pardon from the Pope.

The Holy Father denies his plea. His sin is mortal and he has as much chance of salvation as his pilgrim's staff has to grow green leaves. He comes back, a despairing, broken man, in his desperation determined to seek again Venus in her grotto.

Elizabeth is dead. She had waited at the cross roads to see if he was with the returning pilgrims. He was not with them and she had gone to the castle to die. He tells his experience to Wolfram and just as he is about to give himself again to Venus, Elizabeth's bier is carried down the mountain side. Filled with remorseful agony, he falls on it and dies. Green leaves sprout from his pilgrim's staff. He has been redeemed and purified through the love of a good woman.

Paris Version To Be Used

The opera was first produced in Dresden in 1845 and the music is characteristic of the Wagner of that period, except in the Venusberg scene which Wagner rewrote and added to for the Paris production in 1861. In this the gorgeous Bacchanale and most of the other music is that of the Wagner who wrote "Tristan und Isolde."

The Paris version will be used in this performance and in it the famous overture runs directly, without pause, into the Venusberg music, the Bacchanale and the long scene between Venus and Tannhäuser. In the second scene of the first act we hear the Shepherd's song, the first pilgrim's chorus and the fine male ensemble which brings it to an end.

The second act opens with Elizabeth's joyous greeting to the hall which is so soon again to see the beloved minstrel; then come the duet between Elizabeth and Tannhäuser, the entrance of the nobles—famously known as the "Tannhäuser March"—the contest of song and the long and magnificent ensemble which closes the act.

In the last act there are the beautiful orchestral introduction, the second pilgrim's chorus, Elizabeth's prayer, Wolfram's song to the Evening Star and the thrilling narrative of the returned hero.

In this Saturday's performance in which I am singing the title-role, Lotte Lehmann will sing Elizabeth, Maria Olszewska, Venus; Friedrich Schorr, Wolfram; Ludwig Hofmann, the Landgrave. Others in the cast will be Editha Fleischner, Messrs. Clemens, Paltzfelder, Gabor and Wolfe. Artur Bodanzky will conduct.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

A human being at work suddenly falls as though struck down and finds himself thereafter unable to move certain muscles of his face, his arms, or his legs.

In another case a man goes to sleep. During the night he awakens with a sharp cry and is found to be partially paralyzed. In most instances this is due to a sudden hemorrhage in the brain, scientifically called apoplexy, from the Greek word meaning disabled by a stroke.

All sorts of superstitions and notions exist about a stroke—one of them being that the third stroke is always fatal. There is no basis for this notion except that a person who has had repeated strokes is more apt to die after the second or third than after the first, since by that time his resistance is worn down.

Apoplexy is due to a sudden breaking of an artery in the brain. It also may be due to a sudden stopping of an artery in the brain by a clot carried to the brain from elsewhere in the body, or to a sudden coagulation or clotting of the blood in one of the vessels in the brain.

Strokes occur most often in men over 50 years old who have high blood pressure. When a stroke occurs in a young person, it is more often due to a small clot coming from elsewhere in the body, or sometimes due to materials which get into the blood stream from growths on valves of the heart.

When a person has a stroke the first thing to do is to put him absolutely at rest on his back, with the upper part of the body slightly elevated. A covered ice bag put on the side of the head, on the side opposite to the paralysis.

Persons who become unconscious usually are deprived of fluids. They are unable to drink or swallow. It is therefore, absolutely necessary to see that fluids are put into the bodies of these persons, either by injection with a tube or by injection under the skin.

In a good many cases there is a tendency after the passing of some time for the blood supply to open its way through the clot which forms when the vessel is broken, and in such cases there may develop later a return of motion into the parts that have been paralyzed.

It is always well in these cases to remember a proverb which is among the most important in the field of medicine; namely, "Where there's life, there's hope."

Yes! decided handsome Pablito, swept away by Estelle Field's loveliness. Unattainable? Of course she was—but when did youth ever stop at that barrier?

No! growled Jim Fields—and when he found that the usual threats about money meant nothing to these two, he played his trump card... and triumphed..

Pablito is the unconventional hero of this unconventional story. A bronzed, flaxen-haired youngster of mysterious origin—a fighter and a gentleman.

Estelle is the utterly captivating heroine of this dramatic romance with its glittering Southern background and swift action. A love story of rare beauty.

Picture Highlights In Life of Old and New Belgian Rulers

These pictures of the late King Albert and his family recall some of the highlights in the life of Belgium's beloved ruler. At upper left you see him in Brussels with the late President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson. At that time, King Albert was being hailed as one of the greatest heroes of the World War . . . He carefully trained his son for succession to the throne, and below are pictured Crown Prince Leopold, who now will become King, and his wife, Princess Astrid of Sweden . . . Next is an unusually fine character study of the dead ruler . . . Always daring and progressive, he was the first crowned head in the world to ride in an airplane, and the lower photo shows him in an open-cockpit craft . . .

Fond of all sorts of sports, he was trying his skill at archery when the next picture, at top, was snapped . . . But he particularly enjoyed mountain climbing, the hazardous pastime which finally resulted in his death. As the two photos prove, no scaling adventure was too difficult or perilous for him to attempt. He's shown below resting on a narrow ledge atop Campanile Basso, a peak in the Italian Alps. And at extreme right you see him on his way up an almost vertical cliff in the same mountains. Elizabeth, bereaved Queen of the Belgians, is shown at top. Her daughter (below), Princess Marie-Jose, is the wife of Crown Prince Humberto of Italy.

Just another little boy who wore Eton collars was Leopold, now King of the Belgians, when he was a prince, in the early days of the century. But war came to his native land and at 13 he was in the trenches, a private in the army, under fire of German guns. When the war ended he was a veteran and wore his uniform like one. After the conflict ended, he visited America and one of his greatest thrills was gazing at New York's skyscrapers. And he did not forget to take a good look at the American girls, who clustered around him, describing them as "pretty and interesting," and they put the seal of their approval on him.

Romance came to Leopold in the kitchen of the Swedish royal palace. There he found that the salads which delighted his palate while on a visit to Stockholm were concocted by the charming Princess Astrid. Love blossomed and they were married in Brussels on Nov. 10, 1926. They have two children, a daughter, 7, and a son, 4. Leopold, democratic like his father, finds great delight in "linking" with machinery. He also often has been seen in the locomotive cabs on Belgian trains. Now, at 32, he takes over the great task of ruling a nation, saddened by the death of one of the greatest monarchs of modern times

First Actual Photographs of Rioting In Gay Paris

Rioters Hurl Stones From Behind Blazing Barricade

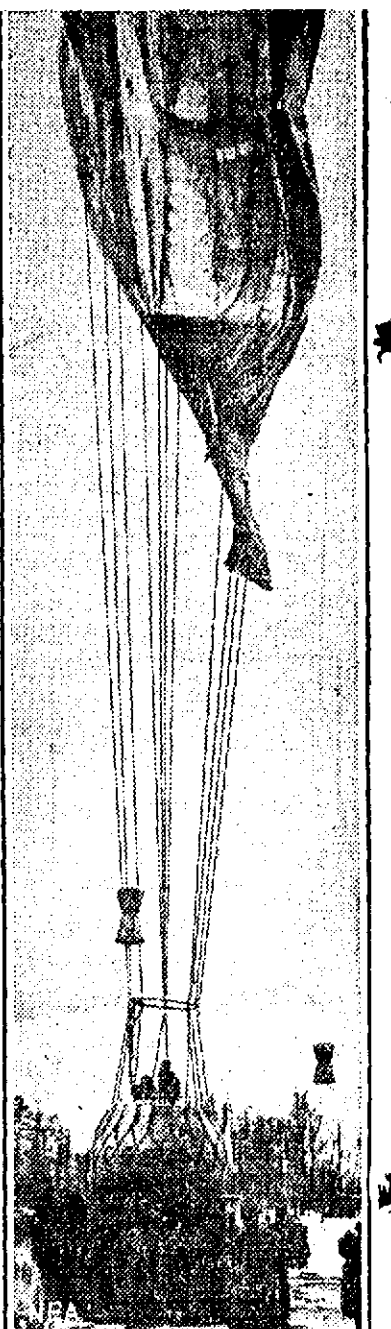

Rebels Frantically Build "Street Fort"

Hurling paving blocks torn up from the boulevard in which they are entrenched, Royalists and Communists are shown in this remarkable action photo as they attacked police during the momentous riots in Paris. The photographer stood in the line of fire to take this picture near the Gare St. Lazare at the height of the street warfare. Note the blazing barricade.

Under the eerie light of a street fire, Parisian Royalists are shown in this historic photo hastily erecting a barricade in famous Rue Lafayette. This was one of the many scenes enacted throughout the city during the widespread riotings which brought about the downfall of the Daladier cabinet.

The stratosphere flight that broke a world's record—but ended in tragedy—is pictured at its start at Moscow. After soaring more than 13 miles, the balloon's gondola broke loose, dashing the crew of three men to their death.
